The University of New Hampshire is a public research university that is home to roughly 13,000 undergraduate students. Founded in 1866, we offer more than 100 undergraduate programs on three campuses. Our main residential campus is located in Durham.

Our students come from 48 states and over 70 countries to learn from exceptional faculty and earn jobs at remarkable rates - but that's only part of the story. We offer a world-class education on a safe and sustainable campus surrounded by natural beauty. Most importantly, every voice matters in our community. Everyone is welcome and can find their fit. And our students are doing amazing things, on our campus and around the world.
